2) D1, which is considered to represent the closest prior art, discloses (cf. page 5, line 33 to page 6, line 21) a drive for a regulating device from which the subject matter of claim 1 essentially differs in that the locking element is fixed in a position locking the drive element by magnetic forces produced by the stator of the drive motor when the drive motor is not energized.

The problem addressed by the present invention may therefore be considered that of providing a maximally simple self-locking design for a powered drive for a regulating device.

Since dependent claims 2-24 claim optional features of the drive according to claim 1, they may also be considered to be novel, to involve an inventive step and to be industrially applicable (PCT Article 33(2) to (4)) in accordance with claim 1.
